VICTORIA PENDLETON opens our greenest eco-parcel depot in Oxfordshire

DPD was delighted to invite Victoria Pendleton to open our first eco-depot, built with net zero carbon in Bicester yesterday.

Victoria was given a tour of the new 60,000 sq ft, low energy and zero carbon design building which will, when operational, deliver a 40% reduction in carbon emissions. There are 517 solar panels and air source heat pumps, in fact it's the greenest and most sustainable depot in our network.

Earlier this year DPD announced the launch of its 25,25,25 strategy that will see DPD deliver only on all-electric vehicles in 25 cities based throughout the UK by 2025, 10 of those achieved this year with Oxford being one.

The Olympic champion commented, “What DPD are doing here is incredible and I hope they keep investing in their all-electric fleet. I was really happy to see DPD providing bikes for their staff to go to and from work on and I wish them all the best in their drive to be the UK’s most sustainable delivery company.”
